

Tom's Corner: sticky issues

Tom Smiley writes:

Happiness: Should it be our goal as Christians and as psychologists to make people "happy"? Many psychological therapies seem to see it as their ultimate goal to bring about the "happiness" of clients – how much is this in keeping with a Christian understanding of life? Is there something more that we should be looking to give people? What is "happiness" anyway?

Replies by e-mail please to: newsletter@necip.org.uk.